SOURCES OF FUNDING FOR TEACHER APPRENTICES

Introduction

Registered teacher apprentices in Tennessee do not pay for any portion of their apprenticeship program. As the sponsor, the Tennessee Department of Education, in partnership with the school districts, are responsible to ensure no cost to the apprentice. To accomplish this goal, the Tennessee Grow Your Own Center (TNGYOC) provides the following guide to support the development of MOUs and LEA – EPP partnerships.

The TNGYOC is committed to helping school districts (LEAs) and educator preparation providers (EPPs) identify and describe learner eligibility for funding so that the candidates who most need the GYO teacher apprenticeship program will have access to it.

How does it work?

Each LEA – EPP partnership is somewhat unique. TNGYOC staff are ready to facilitate these partnerships according to the unique needs of each LEA. Regardless of the specific needs, every partnership has three elements in common.

1. School districts identify their areas of need (i.e. special education, ESL, post-baccalaureate pathways, bachelor’s degree pathways etc.)
2. The TNGYOC helps districts find approved and accessible EPP licensure pathways that meet their district’s staffing needs.
3. The LEA and the EPP create, refine, revise, and finalize an MOU outlining the eligibility criteria for apprentices in addition to operational elements. The MOU can:
 - i. define programmatic characteristics. For example, the LEA may choose one EPP for their special education licensure program and a different EPP for their elementary education program.
 - ii. define financial agreements. For example, the EPP may require the LEA to contribute funding for mentors or to budget funding to contribute to a portion of the expense of an apprentice’s coursework, if needed.
 - iii. define apprentice eligibility requirements. For example, apprentices may need to be eligible for TN Reconnect if they do not yet have 60 undergraduate credit hours.

All of the funding sources provided in this resource are grants which do not need to be repaid if guidelines are followed. In addition to these funds, the TNGYOC will contribute a defined amount for each apprentice’s program of study. Once an LEA identifies a teacher apprentice, that person applies to the LEA’s identified college or university, and their financial aid is calculated just as it would be for any other applicant. TNGYOC funds are then applied as last-dollar scholarships to ensure no cost for the apprentice.

The descriptions of these funding programs are intended to inform each LEA - EPP partnership so that MOUs can be developed that reflect a commitment to certain participant eligibility criteria.

Tennessee Future Teacher Scholarship Act of 2023

For any EPP/LEA considering the use of the Future Teacher Scholarship act to cover the cost of related instruction for a teacher apprentice, it should be well documented in an MOU between the learner and their LEA that they understand the specific requirements and commitment involved, as well as the potential consequences of not fulfilling the service obligation.

This scholarship is aimed at supporting students in distressed counties by providing additional financial aid opportunities. Here's how the Tennessee Future Teacher Scholarship Act of 2023 can benefit aspiring teachers in at-risk and distressed counties:

1. Enhanced Financial Aid: Eligible working adult learners, including registered teacher apprentices, may have access to increased scholarships and grants specifically tailored to their needs.
2. Targeted Support: Applicants must agree to teach in a Tennessee public school for at least four (4) consecutive years in a targeted setting (a targeted setting is either: 1) a Tennessee public school located in a distressed or at-risk county, as determined by the department of education, or 2) a subject area for which there is a critical shortage, as determined by the department of education).
3. Application Process: Students must complete the scholarship application and email the completed application to cindy.runnels@tn.gov by September 1st for consideration. In addition, recipients must complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) for each academic year.

Teacher Education Assistance for College and Higher Education (TEACH) Grant

- For any EPP/LEA considering the use of the TEACH Grant to cover the cost of related instruction for a teacher apprentice, it should be well documented in an MOU between the learner and their LEA that they understand the specific requirements and commitment involved, as well as the potential consequences of not fulfilling the service obligation. While the TEACH Grant can provide valuable financial support for aspiring teachers, careful planning and consideration of the teaching commitment are essential to make the most of this opportunity.
- There is a federal financial aid program in the United States that aims to encourage and support students who are pursuing a career in teaching in high-need fields and underserved communities. Administered by the U.S. Department of Education, the TEACH Grant provides financial assistance to eligible students who commit to teaching in specified subjects and locations after completing their education.
- The TEACH Grant offers a maximum annual award amount that is determined by Congress, and it is available to both undergraduate and graduate students who are enrolled in an eligible institution and are pursuing a program that leads to a teaching credential or certification. To be eligible for the grant, students must agree to teach in a high-need field, which typically includes subjects such as mathematics, science, special education, bilingual education, and English language acquisition.
- In addition to teaching in a high-need field, TEACH Grant recipients are required to teach in a low-income school or educational service agency for a certain number of years, usually four years within an eight-year period after completing their program. If recipients fail to fulfill this service obligation, the grant converts into an unsubsidized Direct Loan, which must be repaid with interest.

The Minority Teaching Fellowship Program

Tennessee offers the Minority Teaching Fellowship Program. This program is specifically designed to provide additional support and financial aid to working adult learners from minority backgrounds pursuing a teaching career. Here's how the program can benefit aspiring teachers:

1. Eligibility: The Minority Teaching Fellowship Program is open to working adult learners from minority backgrounds who meet specific criteria. These criteria may include residency, academic achievement, and a commitment to teaching in underserved communities.
2. Financial Support: The Minority Teaching Fellowship Program offers additional scholarships and financial aid to qualified students. The program aims to alleviate the financial burden of pursuing a teaching degree and supports students in achieving their educational and career goals.
3. Community and Mentorship: As part of the Minority Teaching Fellowship Program, students will have access to a supportive community of peers and mentors. This network provides valuable guidance, resources, and opportunities for professional growth.
